Kentucky Homecoming

On Saturday, August 22, the Church of God of Prophecy family from across Kentucky is coming together for a day unlike any other. We are calling every generation—every pastor, every local church, every family, and every friend—to join us at Camp Nikao for Kentucky Homecoming 2026!

This will be a day to reconnect with old friends, celebrate our shared history, strengthen the relationships that unite us, and look with faith toward the future God is preparing for Kentucky. Whether Camp Nikao holds decades of memories for you or you have never visited before, there is a place for you at Homecoming.

We are especially honored to welcome Presiding Bishop Tim Coalter and Bishop Richard Ramsey as part of this special gathering. Throughout the day, we will worship together, share meals and fellowship, celebrate what God has done across our state, and make new memories as one Kentucky family.

Mark your calendar now for Saturday, August 22, and begin making plans to bring your church family with you. We are believing for hundreds of people from across the Commonwealth to fill Camp Nikao for a joyful celebration of where we have been, what God is doing now, and where He is leading us next.

Come home to Camp Nikao. We'll see you at Kentucky Homecoming!

This summer, 176 children and teenagers gathered at Camp Nikao for Kentucky Youth Camp, and we witnessed a powerful move of God that we will be talking about for years to come.

Throughout our weeks of camp, the presence of the Lord was undeniable. We watched young people encounter Jesus in life-changing ways as 46 campers made decisions for salvation, 50 testified to the sanctifying work of God in their lives, and 57 were filled with the Holy Spirit. Eighteen young people also responded to the call of God into ministry, saying yes to whatever He may ask of their lives.

But the story of camp cannot be told by numbers alone. We watched children and teenagers experience physical healing. We saw young people set free, restored, and renewed. We watched friendships form, faith deepen, and a generation discover that the same God they have heard preached about is a God they can encounter for themselves.

None of this happened by accident. It was the result of months of prayer, preparation, sacrifice, and the faithful service of directors, staff members, pastors, churches, parents, and volunteers from across Kentucky. Every meal prepared, every cabin supervised, every lesson taught, every altar prayer prayed, and every gift given helped create a place where young people could encounter God.

Kentucky Youth Camp is more than a week away from home. It is a place where lives are changed, callings are awakened, and a generation is being equipped to carry the Gospel forward. We are deeply grateful for every person and every church that invested in making this summer possible.

The fruit of camp does not end when the gates of Camp Nikao close. These 176 young people are returning to their homes, churches, schools, and communities carrying what God has done in them. Our prayer now is that the seeds planted at camp will continue to grow and that the testimonies of this summer will become the beginning of a lifetime of following Jesus.

To God be all the glory for what He has done—and we believe the best is still ahead for this generation.
